Host City, Daejeon

Surrounded by idyllic jade mountains peppered with ancient temples and Confucian pavilions, Daejeon is generally considered the most livable and dynamic of Korea’s major cities. Traffic is quite reasonable, parks, rivers and museums are never more than a short ride away and one can get to Seoul in 50 minutes by train. But what makes Daejeon unique among other Asian cities is its astonishing collection of universities and research institutes conducting world-class research in the applied sciences from semiconductors to fusion technology and next-generation satellites. Daejeon boasts a large international community and an impressive population of over 7,500 citizens with Ph.D. degrees in the applied sciences and an equal number with M.A.s and other advanced training programs. Daejeon has earned its name as Asia’s “Silicon Valley.”

Venue: Daejeon Convention Center

Daejeon Convention Center is an international convention center that embodies all the state-of-the-art technologies of Daejeon, the City of Science. Since all facilities including the grand ballroom, exhibition halls, conference rooms and small- and medium-sized meeting rooms are configured in a user-friendly way, visitors will enjoy the conveniences that haven’t been experienced before.

About WCC 2015

WCC is the most important Information Technology (IT) meeting in the world. It has taken place every 2-3 years since 1959, and the Korean Institute of Information Scientists and Engineers (KIISE) is delighted to organize the Congress for the first time in its history. As in previous occasions, the WCC 2015 will be a major scientific event, bringing together our Information Technology from all over the globe and demonstrating the vital role that SW plays in science and society.

Under the theme of "WCC 2015, Opening our Future Together", it is prepared for the event in order to successfully provide participants the opportunities for not only learning practical and relevant knowledge and skills but also deepening mutual understanding between colleagues working under diverse conditions so that everyone can advance ‘opening our future together’. The Congress will offer various colocated conferences where participants can experience the latest high-tech IT fields, and small interactive discussion sessions. Many distinguished invited scholars from all over the world will ensure that the Congress is filled with rich and insightful sessions.

Co-located Conferences

This year the Congress is composed of the thirteen conferences which reflect main areas of information technology research and applications:
